To whom it may concern,

RE: LETTER OF SUPPORT- INDIGO ALERT CANADA

To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to offer my support for the Indigo Alert Canada campaign and its efforts to strengthen emergency responses for vulnerable missing persons.

When a loved one goes missing, every moment matters. Families facing the disappearance of a non-verbal autistic child, a senior living with dementia, or another vulnerable individual experience unimaginable fear and uncertainty. In these situations, timely public awareness can play a critical role in helping bring someone home safely. Canada's existing emergency alert systems have proven to be invaluable tools in mobilizing the public during urgent situations. The proposal for an Indigo Alert recognizes that there are circumstances involving vulnerable missing persons that may benefit from a dedicated public alert system designed to encourage rapid awareness and community action.

Protecting vulnerable Canadians is a shared responsibility that requires collaboration, compassion, and a commitment to finding practical solutions that improve public safety. I commend the advocates, families, and volunteers behind Indigo Alert Canada for their dedication to raising awareness of this important issue and for their efforts to support families during some of the most difficult moments they may face.

I believe the conversation surrounding an Indigo Alert is an important one, and I support continued efforts to explore how such a system could enhance the safety of vulnerable individuals and improve outcomes when time is of the essence.

Thank you for your continued advocacy and commitment to protecting some of our most vulnerable community members.

Sincerely,

Corey Hogan
